Enjoy DIY Time

Do you enjoy making things with your own hands? If so, then the world of DIY is for you! This term, our school is building two exciting DIY workshops. They provide all materials, so just come with your great interest and creativity!

Project One: A Wooden Phone Holder

♦ Draw your design on the wood. Use sandpaper to smooth the rough (粗糙) edges of the wooden pieces.

♦ Glue the pieces together to form a stable (稳固的) stand that can hold your phone. Hold them firmly for a minute until the glue is dry.

♦ This is the fun part! You can paint your stand in your favourite colours or draw patterns on it. Let it dry completely.

♦ Put your phone on the stand. Can it hold well? If not, improve the design.

Time: Wednesday, 4:00 PM—5:00 PM

Place: Room 201 (Science Lab) Teacher: Mr. Davis

Project Two: A Rope Basket

♦ Roll the rope into a tight circle and use glue to stick the round parts together. This circle is the bottom of your basket.

♦ Keep rolling the rope up slowly. After each new round of rope, put a little glue between it and the round part below. This will make the sides strong and straight.

♦ When the basket is as deep as you like (5 to 10 cm is good), use scissors to cut the rope. Glue the end of the rope to the inside of the basket neatly.

♦ Let the glue dry and set. This takes about 30 minutes. Don't use the basket too early—if you do, it might break!

Time: Friday, 4:30 PM—5:30 PM

Place: Room 105 (Art Room) Teacher: Ms. Garcia

26. Why don't students need to bring materials to the workshops?

A. Materials are too heavy to carry.

B. The school provides all materials.

C. Students can use old materials at home.

D. The teachers will buy materials for students.

27. Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

A. Both workshops are held in the art room.

B. Students need to bring their own glue and paint.

C. Each student needs an adult to help make the wooden phone holder.

D. It takes time to let the glue cool before we use the rope basket.

28. What kind of passage is this?

A. A story. B. A notice. C. A diary. D. A letter.

B

The online song "Mei Chuxi" (which means "Good for Nothing" in English) has gone viral on both sides of the Taiwan Strait. It talks about the feelings of young people in a relaxed and humorous way. As an important part of China, the Taiwan region shares the same cultural roots with the Chinese mainland. This common background helps people from both sides understand and enjoy the same songs and stories.

There are three main reasons why this song is so popular. First, its lyrics (歌词) are very easy to understand, and the melody (旋律) is simple. It lets young people see their own lives—the stress and dreams. And it tells them it's ok to relax and not to take things too seriously. Second, short-video platforms like Douyin helped it spread quickly. Young people from both the mainland and Taiwan region made many creative videos using the song, such as piano versions and suona versions. This made the song even more popular. Most importantly, because people across the Strait share similar cultures and life experiences, they can easily understand the feelings in the song.

This cultural event is very meaningful. It builds a bridge for people-to-people exchanges, especially among the youth. It also shows people's wish for harmony (和谐) and understanding across the Strait.

In conclusion, the popularity of "Mei Chuxi" is a great example of how culture can bring people together. We hope to see more creative works like this, which can help young people on both sides become better friends.

29. What is the main topic of this passage?

A. How to make a popular short video.

B. The popularity of a song across the Strait.

C. The difference between two cultures.

D. How to write a good melody.

30. What does the underlined word "viral" in Paragraph 1 mean?

A. popular　　B. quiet　　C. difficult　　D. interesting

31. What is the writer's hope for the future?

A. The writer hopes that people will forget the song quickly.

B. The writer hopes to see more creative works to bring people together.

C. The writer hopes that young people focus only on their studies.

D. The writer hopes to stop all cultural exchanges.

C

Do you think studying is a little boring? But when you watch someone else study, do you want to join them? You're not the only one. "Study with Me" is a new way you can try. The reason is simple: watching others study makes us want to do the same.

"Study with Me" is a kind of live broadcast (现场直播) on the Internet. Usually, it shows a person studying. Sometimes it's quiet, and sometimes there is soft music. It makes viewers feel like they have a study partner. It also lets people focus together, share the same experience, and feel part of a group. Studying together can make learning more fun. That's why these study broadcasts are getting more popular. More and more students around the world are interested in them.

So why does watching someone else study make us want to study too? Scientists say it's a natural habit for humans. We often copy the things people around us do. This is called mimicry (模仿). When we watch someone study, we may copy how they take notes, use the same study tools, or even take breaks at the same time. Also, we all need support from others. The people on the screen are like our "secret study partners". When we see them working hard, we feel like we're on a team. This encourages us not to give up when tasks are hard.

" Study with Me" can help you, but there are some things to remember. First, before you join an online study group, set clear study goals. This helps you focus on your own work. Second, don't depend on it too much. Sometimes you need to learn by yourself. Finally, try to study with people you can trust. They should have a good, organised study plan.

With the development of AI, ways of learning are always changing. They bring us new and exciting learning experiences. "Study with Me" is a great example. It helps people work closely together and encourages students to enjoy their learning journey—with focus, fun, and friendship.

32. What is a "Study with Me" broadcast?

A. A TV show about school life.

B. An online video of a person studying.

C. A radio programme with soft music.

D. A book that teaches how to study.

33. What might happen when you watch a “Study with Me” broadcast?

A. You will learn the best way to take notes.

B. You might feel like you are part of a group.

C. The person on the screen will become your real friend.

D. You will never need to study by yourself again.

34. What does the underlined sentence “don’t depend on it too much” in Paragraph 4 tell us?

A. “Study with Me” is not a very good idea.

B. It is also important to be able to study by yourself.

C. You should sometimes turn off the music in the broadcast.

D. These broadcasts often have technical problems.

35. What does the writer think of the future of learning at the end of the passage?

A. It is difficult and challenging.

B. It focuses only on AI teachers.

C. It is creative and keeps developing.

D. It is less fun and more serious.

D

Minor (Light) Snow, or “Xiao Xue”, is the 20th of the 24 traditional Chinese solar terms (节气). It usually falls around November 22 or 23 each year. ____36____ It only means that snow is beginning to fall—especially in northern China—but the snowfall is light.

This time brings big weather changes. Cold air moves south more often, making the temperature (气温) drop a lot. ____37____ In the north, you might see light snow or even “wet snow”. In the south, it’s cold with frost in the morning, though there is not much snow. Ancient Chinese noticed three signs of Minor Snow. First, rain turns to snow, so there are no rainbows. Second, the “yang energy” (warmth) rises and “yin energy” (cold) falls. Finally, nature becomes quiet—plants stop growing. ____38____

There are many fun traditions for this time. An old saying goes, “Pickle vegetables at Minor Snow, store flavors in jars.” (小雪腌菜，囤味缸中) ____39____ In the south, people make glutinous rice cakes, which stand for harvest (收获) and happiness. Many families also make cured meat such as bacon, because the cold, dry air can keep it fresh.

____40____ It also carries the wisdom of ancient Chinese people, teaching us to live in harmony with nature as winter comes.

A. Minor Snow is more than just a weather marker.

B. Many people think it means heavy snow, but that's not true.

C. Minor Snow means people should do exercise to stay healthy.

D. Days get shorter too, and nights come earlier.

E. Northern families salt cabbage or radishes (萝卜) to eat in winter.

F. Farmers usually harvest all their crops before this solar term.

G. It feels like winter has truly come.

六、阅读回答问题（每题不多于10个词；共5小题；每小题2分，满分10分）

Joss Naylor is a sheep farmer from the Lake District. To most people, his name means little, but in certain circles, people see him as one of the greatest mountain runners in the world.

Joss lives and breathes mountains. He has lived and farmed all his life in an area of the Lake District. It has many mountains, like the tallest mountain in England. Joss can run fast over mountains, almost like a superman. However, he wasn't always a mountain runner. As a young man, the doctor advised him to give up farming because of serious back problems. But when he was 24, he was bored with people telling him to take it easy.

Nothing can stop a good man from being better! He went on working and took up running. When he ran his first mountain race, he discovered that he fell in love with it. He spent much time looking after sheep on the mountains, which helped him prepare for the races. His achievements are famous. For example, he broke his own record and set a new one. At the age of 50, he completed all 214 Wainwright peaks in seven days. "It is a wonderful experience though the practice is very hard," he said. Many of his runs raise money for charity (慈善), and he is popular in the community.

He keeps writing and sharing his accounts of his climbs. "I want people back home—especially family and friends who support me to get a real feel for what it's like," he said.

61. Where does Joss Naylor live?

A wise old man saw his son having an argument (争执) with his wife. He asked his son, “Why do you raise your voice every time you talk with your wife?” His son answered, “You know I work in a supermarket. Every day when I get home, I am tired. But she always asks me to ___16___ my words. I raise my voice so she can hear me.”

“Your wife is ___17___ enough to catch your words when you say the same sentence in a soft way. Why do you have to raise your voice?” the father asked. “Maybe because I need to let out some feelings by raising my voice,” his son replied. “The feelings will come out in the ___18___ way if you whisper (低声耳语) to her. So why is that?” “Or because I ___19___ my cool (理智) when she doesn’t understand my point,” the man said. “But that is not the real ___20___ why you raise your voice. It is because when you are ___21___ with your wife, your heart moves away from her heart. So even though you sit close to each other, you feel that you are far away from one ___22___. You feel like you have to ___23___,” the father replied. “So what should I do to solve this?” the son asked. “When two people are in ___24___, their hearts are close to each other. If you whisper softly, you can both hear each other ___25___. This is how you should talk to each other. When we speak gently to others, even if the other person is a stranger, we feel happy as well,” the father replied.

The son nodded his head slowly. The next day when he was working in the ___26___, an elderly woman ___27___ things with a lot of small change. After a long day at work, he was a bit angry. But when he thought of his father’s words, he helped the old lady count her ___28___, taking it from her shaking hands.

He said to her again and again, “Yes, ma’am.” When she asked if she could get a free bag, he went over to the counter to get one for her without getting ___29___.

His father watched him. He realised that his son learnt an important lesson. Then he left, ___30___ happiness. He was sure his son would live a happy life from then on.

①A library is a place for people to read and learn, but some libraries are special. In some areas, smart mobile libraries travel across deserts, mountains and seas to send books to those in need.

③Some people in Thailand live in the mountains and the forests. Their libraries are on the backs of elephants. These big animals can work well along the way. They carry heavy books in metal (金属) boxes. The boxes protect the books from the heavy rain.

④ In Indonesia, there are over 17,000 islands around the country. Most people travel by boat, and their library books are delivered (递送) in the same way. _____ People on the islands keep these books for a few weeks before new books arrive.

⑤Now, some areas have also introduced greener ways like solar-powered cars or drones (无人机) to transport books. But for people who live far away and can't get to the library, a mobile library brings more than books. It also brings a new world.

34. Why do some people use camels to carry library books in Kenya?

A. Because there are no cars.

B. Because they can travel across the deserts.

C. Because there are few workers.

D. Because they can carry more books.

35. How do the people in Thailand protect books from the heavy rain?

A. They put books in metal boxes.

B. They cover books with thick plastic.

One day, Eagle went to visit Tortoise. Tortoise kindly treated him to a good meal. The food was so good that Eagle came again and again, but Eagle never invited Tortoise to his home.

Another day, Tortoise happened to hear Eagle laughing at him, “Ha! I always eat Tortoise’s food, but he can’t reach my home to eat mine.” Tortoise was very angry.

The next day, Eagle came again. Tortoise said, “I will give you a bag full of food. It is a gift for you.”

While Eagle was having his meal, Tortoise climbed into the large bag and hid inside. When Eagle took the bag home, he was surprised to see that Tortoise was in it. “I come to visit you,” said Tortoise. “What do we eat?”

“You’ll be the only meal here!” Eagle said angrily. He tried to hurt Tortoise’s shell. But he failed. He just hurt himself. “You are not my friend any more,” said Tortoise. “Take me home.” Then he held Eagle’s leg. Eagle flew up into the sky and tried to shake Tortoise off but he failed again. Finally, he took Tortoise home and let him go.

As Tortoise walked into his house, he looked back at Eagle and said, “True friends love each other and share things with each other. You are selfish and unkind. You just think about yourself and don’t want to give. Don’t come back to my home again.”

38. Why did Eagle visit Tortoise over and over again?

A. Because he cared about Tortoise.

B. Because he wanted to laugh at Tortoise.

C. Because he wanted to eat good food.

D. Because he liked Tortoise’s house.

39. How did Tortoise get to Eagle’s home?

A. By holding Eagle’s head. B. By climbing up slowly.

C. By giving Eagle some gifts. D. By hiding himself in a bag.

40. How did Eagle’s feelings change according to the passage?

A. Happy → sad → surprised. B. Sad → surprised → happy.

C. Happy → surprised → angry. D. Angry → happy → surprised.

41. What can be the best title for the passage?

A. The Joy of Making True Friends

B. Friendship is about Love and Sharing

C. Choosing a Book is like Choosing a Friend

D. Saying and Doing—Two Different Things

D

When someone thinks differently from you, you may stay away from talking to them or try to make them agree with you. But research finds a better way: use friendly and open language and show you're interested in their ideas.

Many of us don't like controversial (有争议的) talks. We like chatting with people who share similar views, because we think talks with people who don't agree will be uncomfortable. When we have to talk, we often try to "win" by making others believe we're right. This makes problems worse.

Friendly and open language works better. It makes your ideas more believable and helps others listen to you too. Researchers give three easy tips to help us be open in conversation, even when we don't agree strongly.

Recognise (承认) the other person's idea. Say things like "I get that." or "I know what you mean." to show you're listening carefully and respect their thoughts.

Hedge your statements. You don't have to sound 100% sure. In fact, being a little less strong in your words makes your ideas easier for others to accept (接受).

Share your thoughts in a nice way. For example, instead of saying "We shouldn't add more people to the project," say "Let's think about the good things of having fewer people on the project." The first sentence sounds unfriendly and stops further discussion.

Try these, and you'll have better talks!

42. What's the better way to talk with people who have different views?

A. Keeping away from them.

B. Changing your own ideas.

C. Making them agree with you.

D. Using friendly and open language.

43. The underlined phrase "Hedge your statements" in the passage probably means _____.

A. say your ideas gently　　B. ask questions politely

C. explain reasons clearly　　D. make excuses at once

44. What is the main idea of Paragraph 2?

A. When to start a controversial talk.

B. What makes ideas more believable.

C. How to make friendly language work.

D. Why people don’t like talks with different views.

45. Which sentence is friendly and open?

A. My view is the only right one.

B. We must do it my way.

C. Your idea has some good points.

D. You’re completely wrong about this!

Who is the greatest teacher in Chinese history? Many people would say Confucius, born on September 28. Though he lived over 2,000 years ago, people still remember and respect him for his work in education.

Confucius lived in the State of Lu, now part of Shandong Province, during the Spring and Autumn Period. His childhood was hard. His father died when he was 3, and his mother raised him alone. As a child, he had to work to help his mother, but he never gave up studying. He asked many famous teachers for advice and learned music, history, poetry and sports.

Later, he became a teacher and started China's first private school. Back then, only children from rich and powerful families could go to school. But Confucius thought anyone who wanted to learn should have the right. He taught about 3,000 students in his life.

Today, people still follow his thoughts. He said everyone has good points to learn from. He also taught us: "Learning without thinking is pointless; thinking without learning is dangerous."

Confucius was not only a great teacher, but also a wise thinker. He taught people to be strict with themselves and kind to others. His wisdom (智慧) still guides us on the right path today.

56. Why do people still remember and respect Confucius today?

57. Did Confucius live in the Spring and Autumn Period or the Western Zhou Dynasty?

Have you ever wondered what Li Bai or Du Fu would say if they could speak to us today? Thanks to AI technology, creative vloggers are now bringing these ancient people "back to life". They share stories in modern language, and their videos are taking the Internet by storm.

In one video, Du Fu talks about his experience during the An Lushan Rebellion (叛乱) (755-763). In another, Ming Dynasty medical expert (医学专家) Li Shizhen jokes about modern lifestyles. He makes fun of how people try to be healthy by drinking goji berry (枸杞) water but still stay up late. "The videos make me want to learn more about important ancient people. I didn't know much about their stories before," said Wang Jiayi excitedly, 15, from Shandong.

The new fashion isn't for everyone, however. Some people may be unhappy about the way these ancient people speak, in high tones and always asking questions. "They're too pushy (强势), which is different from how they really were," said 14-year-old Wang Shuotong from Jiangsu.

Xia Boen, 14, from Hubei, felt the same. But he was surprised to find that he remembered almost everything they said about their experiences, thanks to the speaking style in the videos.

With AI, the old images we see in textbooks come to life. Young audiences (观众) can experience history through funny conversations. In this way, culture finds new ways to connect with our lives today.

34. How does the writer start the article?

A. By telling a story.　　B. By showing a fact.

C. By asking a question.　　D. By giving an example.

35. Why does the writer mention (提到) Li Shizhen joking about modern lifestyles?

A. To show that AI can create funny stories.

B. To explain how he became a medical expert.

C. To make fun of modern people's unhealthy habits.

D. To show how AI connects history with today's life.

36. What is the main idea of the article?

A. Experiences of important ancient people.

B. How AI technology works in creating videos.

C. Differences between ancient and modern lifestyles.

D. A new way of spreading history and culture through AI.

①Chinese animated film Nobody has become a dark horse sweeping the box office this summer. After 29 days, it had made over 1.4 billion yuan. Many people love it, giving it a high score of 8.6 out of 10 on Douban, a famous review website.

②The story follows a small pig monster (怪兽) who lives in a place called Langlang Mountain. He works hard for the Cave King, but doesn't know how to please the king and makes him angry. After losing his job, he decides to leave the mountain and teams up with three other small and nameless monsters. Together, they pretend (伪装) to be the famous group from Journey to the West and start a dangerous journey to grow and find their true selves.

③The film touches hearts because it shows the hardship of common people. The little monsters face big challenges (挑战) and laugh at difficulties. Even though they are weak, they fight bravely. Many viewers say they see themselves in these characters.

④ Nobody also stands out for its beautiful art style. Made by Shanghai Animation Film Studio, it uses traditional Chinese painting skills. The soft colours of ink-wash paintings and detailed brushwork create a special, dreamlike world. Scenes like foggy mountains or the fur on the monsters look very real and artistic.

⑤The movie also shows respect for Chinese culture. For example, it references (参考) the classic 1986 TV show Journey to the West and ancient buildings from Shanxi Province. These small details make the story feel both old and new.

⑥*Nobody* is more than just a movie. It shows that Chinese stories can be told in fresh, exciting ways. As one viewer said, "The real hero is someone who keeps trying, even when things are tough." This simple but powerful message makes Nobody a must-watch for everyone.

37. What is the main theme of the film Nobody?

A. Growth and self-discovery.

B. A famous king's story.

C. Traditional painting skills.

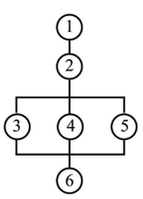

D. Journey of famous monsters.

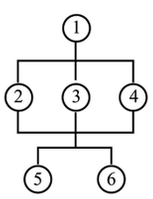

38. Which of the following is mentioned as a reason for the film's success?

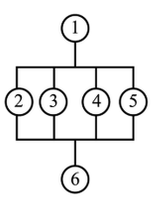

① Art style ② Chinese culture ③ Famous director ④ Characters like us

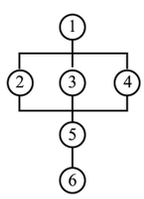

A. ①②③　　B. ①②④　　C. ①③④　　D. ②③④

39. Which is the right structure of the passage?

A.

B.

C.

D.

40. What can we learn from the film Nobody?

A. Giving up is the best choice.

B. Famous stories are always better.

C. Keeping trying makes a real hero.

D. Only strong people can be heroes.

D

In modern times, we get our weather report scientifically. Meteorologists(气象学家) use information from satellites (卫星) to tell us what the weather will be like. They predict the weather for today, tomorrow and even for the whole season. Will it rain? Will it snow? Will it be hot or will it be a long and cold winter?

But what did people do before modern technology? Well, not so long ago, people lived much closer to nature. Using the power of observation (观察), humans predicted the weather according to what was happening in the insect (昆虫) world. Sometimes their predictions were correct, and sometimes they weren't.

My grandfather spent his whole life as a farmer in Canada. He is long gone now. But I still remember his stories about how to predict the weather. For example, in summer, he would often stop to observe the ant hills — those little sandy piles at the entrance (入口) to the ants' nest.

“Look closely at the ant hills in July,” Grandpa used to say. “If the ant hills are high in July, expect a snowy winter.” Of course, as a kid, I believed my grandfather. But you know what? The ant hills are often correct. Not always, but often enough to make me a believer.

In September, Grandpa would often point out a woolly caterpillar (毛毛虫) in a sunny location, “Observe the orange circle around its belly (腹部). If it’s wide and full, we’re sure to have a warm and easy winter. If it is thin, be careful! The winter will be ▲.”

I am older now. I get my weather mostly from the television or radio. Scientific forecasts are usually accurate. After all, they have the latest scientific tools to help them.

But I still stop to observe the ant hills in July, and of course, the woolly caterpillars in September. The older generation (一辈) can teach us many things. My grandfather was not a meteorologist, but he knew a lot about insects and the weather.

41. How did grandpa predict the weather?

A. By using scientific tools.

B. Through television or radio.

C. With the power of observation.

D. With the information from satellites.

42. What did grandpa observe to predict the weather in July?

A. Satellites. B. Ant hills. C. Woolly caterpillar.

D. Scientific tools.

43. Which of the following is the most suitable for ▲?

A. Cold and wet. B. Sunny and dry. C. Warm and easy.

D. Cold and difficult.

44. Why does the writer still observe the ant hills and the woolly caterpillars?

A. Because he doesn’t believe weather reports.

B. Because he likes to learn about the insect world.

C. Because he values the experience of the older generation.

D. Because he wants to become a farmer like his grandpa.

45. Which is the best title for the passage?

A. The power of observation.

B. Weather according to insects.

C. Weather report in modern times.

D. Different ways to make predictions.

Paper is one of our oldest, simplest and most important inventions. ____46____

First, the making of paper needs lots of trees each year. As reported, the world has lost nearly 400 million hectares (公顷) of forests in the past twenty years. Of the trees that were cut down, 42 percent went to paper making. That is a great part of the world's forests. ____47____ Clearly, the earth cannot survive in such a great forest loss (损失).

____48____ A lot of waste paper discarded as rubbish or sent to landfills and even landfills (垃圾填埋场), where it can give off harmful gases (气体). And the harmful gases cause global warming.

One simple way to help out can greatly reduce both of these problems: paper recycling (回收利用). ____49____ Recycling needs an effort from everyone all over the world. The way to begin is with education and understanding. Once enough people realise the need for recycling, more recycling systems can be put into use.

The need is real. ____50____ Everyone should do their part to recycle paper and encourage government and industry to do the same. The world will be a better place for it!

A. The loss of trees matters to everybody on earth.

B. And worldwide use of paper will double in the next 40 years.

C. So far, trees are the only thing that can meet the great need for paper making.

D. The second great problem with paper is that the paper is no longer useful after it is used.

E. It is a source of pride for Chinese people, but it's also a danger to the world in two ways.

F. Instead of cutting down trees, recycle used paper to meet the need of paper-making.

On the evening of August 16, 2025, a student named Pang Zhongwang from Tsinghua University was presented (颁发) with a “Touching China” Award.

Pang has become an example for millions of Chinese students through his unusual life journey. Born into a poor farming family in a small village in Hebei Province, he faced many difficulties but never lost hope.

As the only child of his family, Pang began helping with housework at the age of 6. His parents worked hard to pay for his education while he lived with his grandparents. Every day after school, he did lots of housework and took care of his sick grandmother. Although he faced these difficulties, Pang always kept his schoolwork as the top task. He lived in a poor family, but his grades remained excellent both in primary and middle school.

The turning point came in 2017 when Pang scored 684 points in the college entrance exam. His score earned him admission to Tsinghua University, China’s top university. His story spread online and encouraged the young in China. During interviews, Pang always expressed thanks to his parents and teachers instead of complaining (抱怨) about hard times.

This young man has given hope to countless students facing difficulties. His journey tells the world that with strong will and daily effort, even the hardest dreams can come true. As Pang himself once said: “I don’t think my life is hard. My mother’s positive attitude (态度) deeply changes me. I value the chance to study; that is enough to make me happy.”

	Topic: An Unforgettable Gift		All	My page
	 Tina	The most heart-warming gift I ever received was a handmade birthday card from my friend Mary. It was simple, just a piece of folded paper with colourful drawings and a few words. But what made it special was the effort and love behind it. Every time I look at the card, I feel warmth in my heart.
	 Wei Hua	The most special gift I ever got was a book from my teacher Miss Li. I had a hard time at school for a while. Miss Li gave me this book about courage. She said it might help me feel better. The book is old now, and the pages are a little yellow. But I still read it sometimes, especially when I feel down. Every time I hold it, I remember Miss Li.
	 Jane	The most valuable gift I ever received was a photo album (相册) from my parents. It was filled with photos from my birth to my graduation. Every time I look through it, I feel a deep sense of love. It shows a journey of my life and the bond (纽带) with my family. I'll always keep it close to my heart.

21. Why did Miss Li give a book to Wei Hua?

A. To celebrate his graduation.

B. To help him with drawing skills.

C. To encourage him to study better.

Tea has long been a popular drink in China. Chinese people love different kinds of tea. Among them, black tea and white tea from Fujian, green tea from Zhejiang and Anhui, and dark tea from Yunnan are some of the favourites.

In the Song Dynasty (960—1279), tea culture reached new heights. The beauty of the Song tea came alive through "dian cha". Powdered (粉状的) tea was whisked (搅打) with water into soft "clouds". White tea was often used to make the "clouds" as white as the moonlight. Tea artists used clean water to draw pictures on them with a teaspoon. The way of serving dian cha became a living art. It later influenced Japanese tea culture. Today, more young people are learning and passing it on.

Yunnan's dark tea, especially Pu'er, got famous because of the Ancient Tea Horse Road, a historical trade (贸易) route. And it won popularity around the world. In 1976, Frenchman Fred Kempler found a new kind of Pu'er from Yunnan in a Hong Kong shop. In the same year, he visited Yunnan, bought nearly two tons, and began to sell "Yunnan Tuocha" in Europe. Since 1986, Yunnan's Pu'er tuocha has got many prizes at food expos (博览会) in France, America and other countries. Today you can see an old Australian lady holding a cup of sun-dried Pu'er tea, though she still enjoys her English-style black tea with milk and sugar. Tea is a bridge of friendship among nations and peoples.

Tea has been enjoyed from ancient times to the present. Each cup of dian cha, white as the moonlight, turned tea into art, and art into eternity (永恒) . Tea is also loved globally from the east to the west. Each cup of Pu'er, with the smell of sunshine, turns tea into friendship, and friendship into a shared future.

24. What kind of tea was often used for dian cha according to the passage?

A. Black tea. B. Green tea. C. Dark tea. D. White tea.

25. When did Fred Kempler begin to sell "Yunnan Tuocha" in Europe?

A. In 1986. B. In 1976. C. In 1279. D. In 960.

26. Which word is closest in meaning to globally?

globally /'gləʊbəli/ adv. ①全球地 ②全面地 ③总体而言，整体地

A. Globally, our class did well in the English test.

B. The Olympic Games bring people together worldwide .

C. The story is globally interesting though some parts are slow.

D. This math question needs you to consider the numbers globally.

27. What is the best title for the passage?

A. Art in a Tea Cup B. Tea Trade in China C. More Than a Drink

D. Journey of Yunnan Tea

C

Sunshine does make people happier. Imagine how cheerful you are when it clears up after long cold rainy days. Let's discover the science behind sunlight.

Sunlight causes you to produce a chemical (化学物质) called serotonin (血清素). When you are exposed to sunlight, your body will make more serotonin. Higher levels of serotonin will keep you in good spirits. At night, when there is little or no light, your body produces another chemical – melatonin (褪黑激素). It helps your body relax and will make you feel tired, which can prepare you for a good night's sleep. You should keep a good balance between these two chemicals.

However, for many people, it is hard to balance sunlight with darkness. People who stay indoors a lot may not get enough sunlight. The light in a house is usually much weaker than outdoor light on a sunny day. That's why it is believed that those people should get outside in the sunshine. They can get some exercise, enjoy the fresh air and be happy, all at the same time.

There are places where it gets dark for a long time in the winter. People in those places are more likely to develop seasonal affective disorder (SAD). People with SAD may experience symptoms such as low energy and sadness. Treatments include light therapy, talking therapies and medication. People should talk to a health-care professional before trying light therapy.

The roles that sunshine plays in people's lives are more than those above. For example, your body produces Vitamin D (维生素D) from sunlight, which is important for being healthy. In fact, there is more science about sunlight for you to discover. So next time, when you notice the sunshine on your shoulder, take a moment to think, "Why do we love sunshine?"

28. What does Paragraph 2 mainly talk about?

A. What can help people to keep in good spirits.

B. How light influences people through chemicals.

C. Why melatonin can help people relax for a sleep.

D. Which chemical is thought to be more important.

29. Which of the following is an opinion (观点) according to the text?

A. There are places where it gets dark for a long time in the winter.

B. People who stay indoors a lot should get outside in the sunshine.

C. The light in a house is usually less than that outside on a sunny day.

D. People's bodies produce something called Vitamin D from sunlight.

30. Which treatment involving light is mentioned?

A. By staying indoors a lot.

B. By taking in more fresh air.

C. By doing some exercise.

D. By receiving light therapy.

31. Why is the sentence “Why do we love sunshine?” written in the last paragraph?

A. To encourage readers to learn more about sunlight.

B. To advise readers to stay in houses for enough time.

C. To expect readers to realise the importance of Vitamin D.

D. To invite readers to walk into nature to enjoy the fresh air.

D

This is a tale of a lonely old woman. She lived in the white North. There, the night is long in winter and the day is long in summer.

The old woman lived alone in a small village. The villagers took good care of her, but she was still unhappy. She wanted a child of her own.

One winter day, she walked out and saw a small white animal on the ice. It was a baby bear. The bear looked small and felt very cold. The old woman spoke softly to the bear, “Poor little thing. Come with me.” Then she carried him home.

Inside her house, the old woman held the bear close until he was warm. She touched him gently and sang to him softly. He felt comfortable in her arms. From that day, when the old woman ate, she fed the little bear from her hand. When she slept, the bear slept beside her. They were a family now. The village children loved the bear too. They played together.

Time passed quickly and the bear grew big and strong. One day, some villagers said to him, “Little Bear, go hunting with us. We’ll teach you how to hunt.” The bear followed them. Soon the bear became a better hunter than the villagers.

When the weather was bad, everyone stayed indoors. Then the bear went out into the snow and brought home enough food for the whole village. The old woman felt proud of him.

One day, some villagers said to the old woman, “The bear has grown big and strong enough. He is a good hunter now. You’d better let him go back to the wild.”

In the following days, the old woman was quiet, thinking. She thought aloud, “The bear belongs to the wild. I should let him go.”

Finally, she said to the bear, “It’s time for you to leave. Be safe. Be free.” She put her arms around his neck. Her tears ran into his fur. She was heartbroken.

The bear walked slowly away from her and looked back again and again. Then he disappeared. When darkness fell, the old woman still stood there. Once more, she was alone.

A long time passed. The winter came again. One day, the old woman stood at the same place for a long time. The wind blew snow around her face. Suddenly, the white bear appeared and ran to her.

Now, once a year, in winter, the old woman and her little bear meet each other at the same place.

(Adapted from Little Bear)

32. In which season did the old woman first meet the baby bear?

A. c-b-d-a B. a-c-d-b C. a-d-b-c D. c-a-b-d

35. What can we infer (推断) from the underlined sentence in paragraph10?

A. The bear didn't get well and was still ill.

B. The bear was too fat to walk any further.

C. The bear didn't want to leave the old woman.

D. The bear said goodbye to the village children.

第二节 (本题共5小题；每小题1分，满分5分)

Do you often have negative thoughts? Do you and your friends often complain (抱怨) about things? ____36____

● Find the positive, however small

Bad things happen to all of us, but the most important thing is to focus on the positive. For example, next time you are caught in traffic, think about how great it is that you can finish listening to your favourite music. If you don't have much in your fridge, get creative and think of what you can invent with the ingredients (食材) you have. ____37____

● Focus on now

It's easy to think too much about things that have already happened and to get worried about what will happen tomorrow. ____38____ But remember, you can't change the past, and no one can control the future, so the best thing is to focus on the present.

● ____39____

Being around negative people will make you feel negative too. Spend time with people who will make you laugh and help you believe in yourself, not those who spend all day complaining. It's hard to feel negative when you have positive people around you.

● Be kind to others

One of the best ways to make yourself feel good is to help others. ____40____ Spending time helping other people can give you a better perspective (视角) on life and make you value what you have.

A. We all do this sometimes.

B. Find positive friends and partners.

C. Always remind yourself to work hard.

D. It can be exciting to try something new.

E. Find ways to volunteer in your community.

F. The following can help you feel positive about life.

Jiang Zhaopeng, an 18-year-old student, faced a life-or-death test on Saturday—not in an exam hall, but in the backseat of a car, where he performed life-saving CPR on a classmate who went into cardiac arrest.

Jiang and his classmate were heading to take the spring college entrance exam when the emergency happened unexpectedly.

At about 8:10 a.m., the two got into a taxi to the testing site. Just a minute later, Jiang's classmate fell onto his knee. "I thought he was just tired at first," Jiang said. But then the classmate began breathing with difficulty and kicking the front seat before suddenly going limp (瘫软). He soon stopped breathing.

Jiang remembered the first aid lessons from school. He quickly laid his classmate down and began CPR.

"Go to the hospital," Jiang told the driver, Wang Tao. Wang called the local traffic police and sped to the hospital, running six red lights and arriving in just seven minutes—half the usual time.

Jiang didn't tell his school about the whole thing until his classmate was safe with doctors. He then rushed to the exam site, but arrived too late to take the 9 a.m. Chinese language test.

Later, doctors said his classmate would be okay without any brain damage (损伤). "The first four minutes of CPR in the car were very important," the doctors said.

Though he missed the exam, Jiang said he had no regrets about his decision. "Exams can be taken again, but a life cannot," he said.

66. What were Jiang Zhaopeng and his classmate doing when the emergency happened?

67. How did Jiang save his classmate?

68. Why did the taxi driver run red lights?

How to Enjoy Basketball Safely

Basketball is one of the most popular sports among middle school students. It not only brings great fun but also helps build teamwork and improve physical health. However, since it involves running, jumping and ball-handling, we need to play it safely to avoid common injuries. Here are some important tips to ensure safe and enjoyable basketball playing.

● First, always warm up before playing. Do stretches (伸展) and light runs for 5-10 minutes to relax your muscles—this reduces the risk of sprains (扭伤).

● Second, wear proper clothes: basketball shoes to prevent slipping (滑倒), and knee pads (护膝) if you're new.

● Third, follow the game rules. Don't push or hit other players, as this can cause harm.

● Fourth, take breaks when tired. Playing for too long without rest makes your body weak and more likely to get hurt.

Remember, safety always comes first in any sport. By following these simple but useful tips, you can fully enjoy playing basketball with your classmates and friends while staying healthy. After all, basketball isn't just about scoring points or winning games—it's about sharing happy moments and keeping an active lifestyle together.

24. What can basketball help middle school students build?

A. Teamwork.　　B. Strength.　　C. Speed.　　D. Patience.

25. Which is a safe way to play basketball?

A. Wearing slippers while playing.

B. Doing jumping exercises before the game.

C. Taking breaks when feeling tired.

D. Pushing others to get the ball.

26. What does the underlined sentence in the last paragraph want to tell us?

A. Winning basketball games is not necessary at all.

B. The true meaning of basketball is more important than competition.

C. Middle school students should play basketball with friends.

D. An active lifestyle can only be maintained by playing basketball.

While I was looking at the villagers, Mr. Hamel said to us in the same gentle voice, "Children, an order from Berlin asks that only German be taught in Alsace (法国阿尔萨斯大区). A new teacher will arrive tomorrow. This is your last French lesson." These words hit me hard. Those terrible people had made it my last French lesson! But I had hardly learned anything. I wished I could go back in time and make up for all those lost hours and lessons.

I understood why Mr. Hamel had put on his best coat and why the villagers were sitting at the back of the room. They, too, wished they could have attended school more often. They wanted to thank our teacher for his forty years of work and to show their respect for the country. I was lost in these thoughts when I heard my name called. It was my turn to recite (背诵). I wished I could recite the rule of participles (分词) confidently, but I failed. I stood there holding onto my desk, unable to lift my head.

"I won't say bad words to you, my little Franz," Mr. Hamel said. "You must be feeling bad. That's how it goes. We always say, 'I have time. I'll learn it tomorrow.' And now you see, tomorrow has come. It's a great misfortune (不幸) that we always put off learning. Now people will ask, 'How can you say you are French? You don't even know how to read or write your own language.' You are not the only one to blame for this, my poor Franz. We all have good reason to blame ourselves. Your parents would rather have you work in the fields to make a bit more money. I sent you to water my garden quite a few times. And when I wanted to go fishing, didn't I give you the day off?" Mr. Hamel went on. Finally, he spoke of the French language. He called it the most beautiful language in the world and asked us never to forget it. "When a country holds on to its language, it's like holding the key to its freedom (自由)." he said.

27. How did Franz feel when he heard the news at first?

A. Happy and relaxed. B. Worried and afraid. C. Excited and lucky.

D. Surprised and sad.

28. What lesson did Mr. Hamel want Franz to learn after Franz failed to recite?

A. It's never too early to learn our own language.

B. We should help parents make more money.

C. Franz alone should be blamed for not learning French well.

D. Reading is as important as writing when learning French.

29. What does the underlined word "blame" mean in Chinese?

A. 怀疑　　B. 责备　　C. 鼓励　　D. 欣赏

30. Which of the following can be the best title of the passage?

A. The Last Lesson　　B. The Key to Freedom

C. The Most Beautiful Language　　D. My French Teacher

COME TO WIN PRIZES THAT MONEY CANNOT BUY

If you love trains, railways or enjoy designing things, have a try at one of these great competitions. The competitions are for the 200-year anniversary (周年纪念日) of the first passenger journey on the Stockton and Darlington railway. This journey, in 1825, is regarded as the birth of the modern railway.

London North Eastern Railway (LNER) and the National Railway Museum are asking young people to share their wonderful ideas of what the next 200 years of rail would look like. There are some fantastic prizes to be won that you cannot get anywhere else, including a ride in the driver's cab (驾驶室) of a high-speed train.

Design a uniform of the future

For those aged 11 and under

Design a uniform for someone who works on the railway. For example, this could be for a train manager, a driver, etc.

Winner's prize: A real-life uniform of your winning design made by LNER's uniform supplier (供应商), and first-class LNER tickets for you and your family.

Design a train of the future

For ages 12 to 17

This is your chance to design a train for the future. But what makes a great train? The first thing to consider is the outside. Will the train be stylish? Don't forget that the inside of the train is important, too. Where will people sit, store their luggage (行李), go to the toilet, charge (充电) their phones, and where will they get their food and drink?

Winner's prize: A train ride, a driver simulator (模拟器) experience, and first-class LNER tickets for you and your family.

How to enter

The competitions close on August 31, 2025.

Visit lner.co.uk/rail200 for more information. Good luck!

31. Why are the competitions held?

A. To celebrate the 200th anniversary of the first rail journey.

B. To encourage more teenagers to take LNER trains.

C. To raise money for those who work on the railway.

D. To prepare for the 200-year anniversary of the museum.

32. Who will most probably win the uniform designing competition?

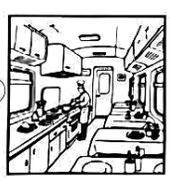

A. Mary, 10, I'm interested in making clothes.

B. John, 12, My favourite subject is art.

C. Henry, 11, I enjoy taking bus rides.

D. Annie, 17, I like making new things.

33. Which of the following pictures are mentioned in the train design?

①  ②  ③  ④

A. ①②③ B. ②③④ C. ①③④ D. ①②④

34. What do the two competitions have in common?

A. Passengers' convenience should be considered.

B. A driving experience will be provided for the winners.

C. The inside and the outside of the train should be designed.

D. The winners will get free train tickets for the whole family.

35. In which part of a magazine can we probably read the text?

A. News. B. Photo. C. Story. D. Advertisement.

Every learner today has a new helper —Artificial Intelligence (AI). AI tools can ____46____ answers and lessons quickly. Online, there is ____47____ information for free.

But we must remember to ____48____ our teachers in class. AI is a tool, not a replacement for thinking. True ____49____ comes from understanding ideas, not just copying answers. Understanding the 'why' behind an answer is ____50____ getting the answer itself. Use AI wisely to help you learn better, not to stop thinking for yourself.

Remember, AI is a helpful tool, but your own effort is the most important for learning.

五、阅读填空（共19小题；51—58题、60—69题每题1分，59题2分，且第59题不少于20词，满分20分）

阅读下面短文，根据所读内容，在空格里填入最恰当的内容。注意：每个空格只填1个单词；最后一个空词数不少于20词。

Cleaning a house seems like a job that never ends. Have you ever stood in the middle of an untidy house, looking at the books and magazines around? You have the thought of tidying them up, but you give up before you start. Well, you are not alone. But luckily, I have found some nice ways to make myself willing to do the housework.

Have less stuff (物品)

Reducing (减少) the number of things is a good way to make house cleaning easier. Every few months, I throw away some things we don't need or use. It could be old clothes that no longer fit or books that I have already read and won't pick up again. Fewer things make the house tidier and easier to clean.

Do a bit each day

Cleaning the whole house without a break can be really difficult, so I do a little each day. Monday could be the day to sweep the floors, Tuesday to make the bed, Wednesday to clean the bathroom, and so on. When the weekend comes, I can enjoy my free time watching a film or reading a good book instead of spending hours cleaning.

Start with the easiest task

When there's a long list of housework, it can be hard to know where to begin. If so, I will start with the easiest task. When I complete the easiest task successfully, it will give me a sense of achievement. In this way, I will be more willing to go on with the rest of the housework.

Make housework interesting

Who says housework has to be boring? I've found that adding a little fun can make a big difference. I love listening to music and cleaning at the same time. As the music plays, I find myself dancing around. Time flies by and before I know it, the house is clean. I feel excited at the same time. It's a win-win situation.

In short, housework doesn't have to be something you hate. By using these ways, you can make it easier, or more enjoyable. You might even surprisingly find that you don't mind cleaning at all.

①In summer, people use their fans to cool themselves off. But the Chinese fan is not just a tool to help people cool themselves down. It's an important part of Chinese culture.

② Chinese fans have a history of over 3,000 years. One of the earliest known "fans" was named shanhan (扇汗). They weren't like the fans we see today. People used them to hide from the sun and protect themselves from the rain on a horse-drawn carriage (马车). Shanhan then changed into a long-handled fan called zhangshan (障扇). This type of fan was made of silk or bird feathers and was mainly used by the emperor's honour guard (仪仗队) for decoration.

③In the Han Dynasty, more common people started using fans because cheaper bamboo fans had been made. These fans stayed popular until the Tang and Song Dynasties. At the same time, a new type of silk fan was also brought in. Young women loved silk fans because they were round, resembling the moon. They were also called "round fans" or tuanshan.

④The ribs (扇骨) of these silk round fans were made of bamboo or animal bones. The handles of the fans usually had different designs. The main part of the fan often had calligraphy (书法) works and painted scenes, like mountains or flowers. Folding fans mainly had panels (扇面) and ribs. For the ribs, people used different kinds of materials, including wood, animal bones and bamboo. The panels of the folding fan were usually made of paper, silk or other materials. They left empty spaces for calligraphers and artists. Their calligraphy works and painted scenes added colour to the fans.

⑤From the Song Dynasty onwards, fan painting became a special kind of art. Fans with pictures of birds and flowers were popular among young women. Men, however, liked fans decorated with calligraphy works. Mythical (神话的) creatures were also popular. Dragons were often painted onto men's fans while ladies usually preferred phoenixes (凤凰).

29. Chinese fans have a history of _____.

A. more than 3,000 years B. more than 5,000 years

C. less than 2,000 years D. less than 3,000 years

30. Why did fans become popular among common people?

A. Because more people learned to make fans.

B. Because cheaper bamboo fans were made.

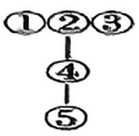

C. Because a new type of silk fan was brought in.

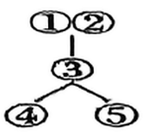

D. Because people wanted to cool themselves down in summer.

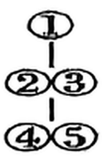

31. What does the underlined word “resembling” in the third paragraph mean?

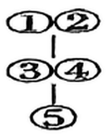

A. cutting out　　B. looking like　　C. turning into　　D. making up

32. Which of the following best shows the structure of the passage?

A.

B.

C.

D.

C

One day, while his mother was out hunting, the grey cub (幼兽) found the way out of the cave. At first, he was afraid. But the need to know and understand was greater than his fear, so he went out. He soon discovered that the floor of the world was not flat like the floor of the cave. And he fell, screaming in fear.

But he soon sat up, and started walking and looking around him. He met a squirrel, and a woodpecker, both of which moved away from him. So he learned that the world had things that stayed in one place, and other things that moved.

He had beginner’s luck when he fell into a ptarmigan’s (雷鸟) nest. In the nest, there were seven chicks. He realised this was meat, like his mother gave him. So he ate them all. As he walked away from the nest, the mother ptarmigan attacked him. He fought back, biting her wing with his small teeth. He was excited and happy. He was fighting for meat, fighting to kill. It was what wolves did. He learned another important lesson.

Then he left the ptarmigan free and rested. As he watched her, something rushed down from above him, picked up the ptarmigan and flew back up into the sky. It was an eagle.

He was learning. Live things were meat, but if they were big enough, live things could also hurt. It was better to eat small live things.

Later something small jumped in front of him, so he put his paw on it. It was a young weasel (鼬鼠). It made strange noises, and soon the mother weasel appeared. She jumped at his neck and bit him with sharp teeth. She wasn’t big, but he didn’t know how dangerous weasels were.

Suddenly she jumped, and bit into his throat. He tried to fight, but the weasel held on. The cub was sure to die, but luckily his mother, the she-wolf, heard his frightened calls and came to save him.

33. What animal is the grey cub?

A. A wolf.　　B. A weasel.　　C. A squirrel.　　D. A ptarmigan.

34. The grey cub learnt _____ lessons in the story.

A. 1　　B. 2　　C. 3　　D. 4

35. Which is the correct order of what happened to the grey cub?

a. He fell down and felt quite afraid. b. He met a squirrel, and a woodpecker.

c. He was bitten in the throat and was dying. d. He saw something pick up the ptarmigan.

e. He had a fight with the mother ptarmigan.

A. a-b-e-d-c　　B. b-a-c-d-e　　C. a-b-d-e-c　　D. b-c-a-d-e

36. Which can best describe the changes of the grey cub's feelings in the story?

A. happy→excited→surprised→afraid

阅读下面短文，然后根据短文内容回答问题。

As students of all ages in China have started their summer vacation, "parent-child" travel welcomes its peak season (旺季), with museums being one of tourists' top choices.

According to a report published in the summer of 2024 , the search popularity of “museums” has increased rapidly since June, with “Shaanxi History Museum”, “Shanghai Museum” and “National Museum of China” as related hot search phrases. The top five cities searched are Xi’an, Beijing, Shanghai, Chengdu and Wuhan, with the highest proportion (比例) of search users aged 30 to 35.

According to the online travel platform, the number of museum ticket bookings during the summer vacation increased by more than 90 percent. The top three museums with a high search index on the travel platform LY.com were the Palace Museum, Shaanxi History Museum and Shanghai Museum, the report said.

Demand for nearby hotels is increasing because of the popularity of museums. According to a study, the summer orders of nearby hotels around The Civilization of Ancient Egypt exhibition at the Shanghai Museum have increased by 20 percent year-on-year. Beijing, Chengdu, Xi’an, Chongqing, Shanghai, Wuhan, Luoyang and Zhengzhou are the most popular cities for booking guest houses around museums in China. Luoyang and Zhengzhou saw the largest increase in bookings. “Summer bookings for guest houses around Guanghan Sanxingdui Museum jumped by more than 15 times year-on-year,” the report said.

60. Why does “parent-child” travel welcome its peak season?

61. When did the search popularity of museums begin to rise?

62. What does the popularity of museums lead to?

63. Which cities saw the largest increase in hotel bookings?

信息还原 （本大题共10分，每题2分）

阅读下面的短文，从所给选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项，选项中有两项为多余选项。

Everyone occasionally has disagreements with friends or family members. For example, you and your friends might not agree about what game to play, which restaurant makes the best pizza, or which baseball team is the best in the league. Sometimes you may also have different views from a friend or family member about more serious topics. ____66____. While disagreements can be uncomfortable, there are some steps you can take to make conversations more civil and productive. Here's how.

See their perspective

____67____. Show that you're paying attention by listening attentively without interrupting them. Think about how their life experiences may be different from yours, which gives them a perspective that's different from yours too. Another way to show that you're listening is by asking questions or repeating what they said. You can start by saying, "OK. If I understand you, you are saying…"

Use respectful language

When someone has an opinion you don't agree with, it can be easy to dismiss it—especially if it's on a subject you're passionate about. Some people shoot down others' opinions by using sarcasm or attacking the person's judgment. Avoid using insulting adjectives, like "stupid", "dumb", or "ridiculous". Instead, focus on speaking calmly. ____68____ . For example, you might lead your opinion with " I feel " or "I see this another way"

____69____

If you have a strong opinion, you can make a better case for it with facts instead of feelings. Start by asking if you can share your opinion. Then relax your shoulders and say what you would like to say in a calm voice. If you get interrupted, gently remind the person that you gave them a turn to speak and now you would like to speak. ____70____ .

A. Stick to the facts

B. Share your feelings strongly

C. Then give the person a chance to respond

D. Start with statements that begin with “I” instead of “You”

E. Examples could include events happening around the world

F. You should always stand firmly on your own ground no matter what

G. Even if you don’t share someone’s point of view, you can still listen to what they have to say
